Dear Paul,

No matter how I plan, there is always something that requires I not return to the writing. I had expected to read at least a chapter yesterday so Darlene could do some retyping. She was free today. But I could not get to it. And now today's mail brought back some of them quoted records from a friend.

After this lunch. After that now legal matters. I've spotted something I missed in the document Jim read in court Wednesday.

In the enclosed letter to a New York friend I refer to one source. That is not the source of the records. I've sent the source referred to only those pages from which I quote for his evaluation and commentary. It is not necessary for any literary purpose but it can help enormously.

Here again a non-fiction movie in fiction form where actual spook documents can be used instead of props, and on what a frightening subject. Note that nobody is immune, that even the higher social levels were unwitting subjects. Like a championship tennis star, who was killed as was the microbiologist.

Maybe you know someone not afraid, or more afraid of not stopping all this Hitlerism Orwell predicted.

Maybe Trumbo is not those you mentioned when here.

Can there be a sequel to Seven Days in May, with Strangelove the central character? If so I have hundreds of pages of actual documents with actual characters, actual reports.

There can be the murder of the good guy because one was murdered and I have more than enough actual documents on that alone.

It can even take the form of a good-guy President as in Seven Days, with him the victim of the victim being the guy who saves him.

The possibilities are limitless within the framework of reality and real records.

I can't be sure but I think I may be able to get more records.

I can't be sure they'll talk but I have the names and addresses of a fair number of the technicians in these programs. What a sterile word for such atrocities!

I trust those you trust. But I suggest care in imposing trust.

The actual cryptonyms are MKULTRA, MKDELTA, MKSEARCH and the top one, MONACHI.

The two code names in the letter are the real ones. I think I mentioned them to you.

This is all so terrible! I'm glad I can close on a lighter note.

Darlene came to pick up a bottled-gas tank and hot-plate I have. Her husband and a friend are going fishing tomorrow. As I looked for the burners to the hot-plate I had to go into the toolshed that backs on the outside of the carport. Lo! a woodchuck is digging a new home along the outside wall of the carport. He/she has a little territorial competition. In addition to the rabbits with the nest of young outside the living-room window there is a family inside the tool compartment of the carport. Their young can move. They frisk around the car every daylight now and then hole up during the day.

Best,
